Parcel Post Experiment.

Congressman Lafean introduced a bill in Congress last Thursday for the establishment of a parcels post system on the rural delivery routes in York and Adams counties. This bill is along the line suggested by Postmaster General Meyer in his annual report and in the event that Congress does not create a parcels post for the whole country Congressman Lafean asks that the experiment be made in this congressional district. The bill as drawn provides for the delivery of bundles not in excess of 11 pounds from the starting point of rural routes. As this district was among the first to be covered by rural routes Congressman Lafean believes it offers special advantages for the experiment of a parcels post.

CROSSING OF THE BAR.

A BRIGHT LITTLE ONE WITH MANY FRIENDS GOES ACROSS.

Man Who Lived Alone Found Dead in His Bed Dressed.

SCHOLAR. Peculiar sorrow has befallen the family of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Seligman. They were summoned recently to Kottanning, Pa., by the death of Mrs. Seligman's father, Mr. Wible, taking three little sons with them. Whilst there, Donald, the second son, four years old, was overtaken by a bilious attack, and after great suffering, died on Thursday last. The parents and the surviving boys returned with the body of Donald to Gettysburg on Friday, and on Saturday the interment took place in Evergreen cemetery. The boy was a bright, happy favorite in the neighborhood and sincere grief was felt, outside of home of the stricken family, over the sudden termination of this brief, joyous life. Conrad Seligman, the father of Mr. S., and Mrs. Burford, a sister, and Henry Wible, a brother of Mrs. Seligman, came with the family to Gettysburg. Mrs. Edmonson of Harrisburg, a former neighbor here, accompanied them from Harrisburg. Thomas Shearer, a cousin, formerly of Gettysburg College, attended the funeral. The religious services were conducted by Rev. Anstadt, the pastor, and the hymn, "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," was sung by a quartet at the house.

WASHINGTON FEESER, a widower, living entirely alone four miles from Union Bridge, was found dead in bed on Sunday morning, Dec. 15. He was about 75 years old and death is supposed to have been due to heart disease. He has been a sufferer from kidney trouble. When found he was cold and had his clothes on. A lamp on a shelf near the bed was still burning. A neighbor who had seen him the day previous and noticed no smoke from the chimney on Sunday went to the house and finding it locked, notified a brother and the two broke into the building and discovered the dead body. No inquest was held as there was no evidence whatever of foul play. The funeral was held on Tuesday of last week. He leaves four children, Abner Feeser of near Kingsdale, Abraham Feeser and Mrs. Leese of Carroll county, Md., and George Feeser whose whereabouts is unknown. He is survived by a brother, Amos Feeser who lived within a short distance.

The funeral was held on last Thursday and the high esteem in which he was held took the form of floral tributes, which took three carriages to convey. He is survived by his wife and four sisters, Mrs. Milton H. Plank, Mrs. J. Z. Handshaw, Misses Bertha and Helen Plank.

CHARLES MILTON WARNER, son of Luther Warner, who left East Berlin 8 years ago for Kansas, and was engaged there in railroad work, was killed at his work last week. He was firing an engine and a switchman ran a train in which he was working and he was instantly killed. He was aged about 35 years.

Rev. Minnick Resigns.

The Rev. W. G. Minnick, pastor of the Mount Joy charge, surprised his congregations by announcing to them his resignation, to take effect January 15, 1908. Rev. Minnick has been pastor of the charge, which is composed of the Mount Joy Lutheran church and of the Lutheran Church at Harney, for over 14 years. The resignation came as a complete surprise to the people of his charge who had no intimation of his resignation and were greatly grieved to learn of his decision.

Mr. Minnick gave as the chief reason for resigning his health which did not permit him to do the large amount of driving which the work required. It is said that he has had a call to the Third Lutheran church of Baltimore.

Serious Accident.

Curtis Chronister, a son of Hon. and Mrs. D. S. Chronister, of Hampton, while on a visit to his parents, and helping a neighbor, met with a serious accident. He had gone with Samuel Bollinger to New Oxford with a large team for a load of coal. On the return trip Curtis went into the Laughman blacksmith shop for some work. Getting same he returned to wagon, threw the work on the wagon and in the attempt to get on wagon his right foot slipped and the heavy front wheel passed over the right leg, breaking the bones apart off above the knee. Dr. G. E. Spitz gave the necessary surgical aid and Curtis was removed to the home of his parents.

SOME CHRISTMAS THINGS

WITH CHRISTMAS THOUGHTS
IN SONG AND RHYME

The Unprecedented Prosperity of 1907 Foretells an Unprecedented
Xmas Buying.

The Merry Roll Call.

Talk about the winter time—no better
can be found!
It's then that Joy takes Sorrow, and "swings her round and round!"
Her sighs melt into music, at the fiddle's frisky sound—
She answers to the roll call of the mornin'!

Talk about the winter time—here, fellows, take your stand!
The fire's just a-blaazin', an' the floor is white with sand:
Ah! the music is a-goin' like a hal-lula laud—
An' we'll answer to the roll-call of the mornin'!

Talk about the winter time—who cares for snow an' sleet?
A big oak fire in winter is a joy that's hard to beat!
There's sorrow at each parting, but there's music when we meet—
An' we'll answer to the roll-call of the mornin'!

THIS issue of the COMPILER goes out in good time to be with its readers in the full glory of that time of "t was the night before Christmas." It goes out with a message of Christmas cheer for a Merry Christmas to all. It goes out joyfully and merrily at the Christmas time of a year that has brought the COMPILER plant more improvement than in any previous year of its existence. It goes out with the best wishes for holiday cheer. And it goes out to be a help to the late buyer to prepare for Christmas.

THE Christmas cheer of 1907 ought to be the most wonderful this country has ever seen, if prosperity has anything to do with it.

The money excitement in the past few months has not been able to blur the fact that 1907 has been the best year United States of America has ever had in the making of money. The reports of the great industrial concerns of the country show that it was the banner year. It was the greatest year in the steel trade. Agriculturally it is the same story. The harvest of the farmers was ten per cent better than last year and the best year ever. Agricultural products reached the stupendous value of seven billions. The aliens who live among us have sent for Xmas times in the old country within the past two weeks, as shown by the records at New York, millions of dollars and this outpouring exceeds the best previous year by over a million. If money can make a Christmas, then the 1907 Christmas ought to be the greatest ever.

Christmas-Wise.

I never speak to Charlie twice,
He's always prompt to come;
Now when I want to read my book
He puts away his drum.
Right willingly he goes to bed,
And seldom ever cries
And all this leads me to conclude
That Charlie's getting wise.
He never asks his mother for A second piece of cake;
He gladly runs to split the wood,
Where'er she starts to bake;
He doesn't whistle 'round the house—
My temper never tries;
And all this leads me to believe
That Charlie's getting wise.

He wipes his feet when he comes in,
Hangs up his hat with care;
He doesn't tease the hired girl,
Or treat her to a scare,
His conduct, for a little boy,
All precedent defies;
Oh! I am satisfied, all right,
That Charlie's getting wise.

Detroit Free Press.

BUT does money make a Christmas?
Or has money, commercialism brought a wisdom to both Charlie and his parents, brothers and sisters, aunts, uncles and cousins. The commercialism of the past quarter of a century, with other environments has certainly evolved a different Xmas than that of a generation or more ago. The old kind was full of wild hilarity, beside which the present Xmas looks tame.
The old kind was boisterous and would make the present kind of noise look like a three cent piece. Is there more or less cheer in the modern Christmas as compared with those which happened in what are often called the good old days?

CHRISTMAS in those days began with a bell ringing that woke up the natives to the fact that Santa Claus had come. For days before and afterwards a spirit of Xmas was in the air that could not be expressed in any other way than by bell-snicking and it was indulged in from children to grown ups. If the homes of the present age were taken possession of night after night with wierd looking things, dressed in their clothes turned inside out or other queer garments and all wearing hideous false faces, the police would be called in. It was not safe to let a door unlocked at Xmas time for the bell-snicker simply walked in and took possession. He traveled in crowds, he made noise with little bells, big bells, sleigh bells, tin horns, bones and any other old kind of thing which made noise galore. He insisted upon remaining in the home until he was fed, sometime with

STRAIN TOO GREAT

Penrose Myers, living at 12 Baltimore St., Gettysburg, Pa., says: "I am forced to be on my feet a great deal of the time and this served to weaken my kidneys. A constant pain across my back caused me much misery and at times was so acute that I could hardly stoop. I also had trouble from rheumatism, at times being very lame and stiff especially in the morning. I was feeling quite miserable when my attention was drawn to Doan's Kidney Pills and I procured a box at The People's drug store. They gave me a complete cure, and I am today without a sign of kidney trouble.
It is all due to the curative powers of Doan's Kidney Pills."

cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

cracking whip making the children dance or chasing them. But eventually fed he could be induced to leave.

It was part of the holiday cooking of every household to get ready the good old sugar cakes, ginger cakes, and the cakes in shape of animals and fowl, and the bellersnicker always saw to it that he got his share of these cakes. The only way to get even with the bellersnicker was to turn bellersnicker oneself. What boisterous holiday fun it all was. But there came years in which in anticipation of the bellersnicker, doors were locked and finding themselves barred out they ceased to make their rounds, and they are but a memory now in many communities.

THE present age with its wonderful machinery and skilled labor accomplishes so much more than past ages, that the result looks like mountains as compared with foot hills, yet the labor of the past age was harder and longer so that when the safety valve of frolic and fun was let loose, it took wild and boisterous forms. In the modern Xmas Spirit there ought to be more heart, more love, more peace on earth, good will to man, yet the funny man has hit off a situation thus wise.

A Peripatetic Christmas Gift.

Some years ago a Christmas gift
Was sent me, but alas!
It was a thing no use to me,
And so it came to pass.
On thrifty thoughts intent, I laid
It carefully away,
And sent it to a bosom friend
Of mine next Christmas day.
Since then, as surely as the snows
In fleecy beauty fall,
And mistletoe and holly wreaths
Are hung upon the wall,
By mail, express, or messenger,
Each second year, alas!
When Christmas gifts are going 'round
I get that present back.

Buchanan Monument.

The birthplace of James Buchanan, the only President Pennsylvania has given the nation, has at last been marked by a monument.

It was 116 years ago that James Buchanan was born, near the village of Foltz, in Franklin county, at a place called Stony Batter. Before the present monument was erected there was nothing about the cabin, in which the fifteenth President first saw the light of day, to indicate that it had once sheltered the only son of this state who became the head of the nation.

By the will of President Buchanan's niece, Harriett Johnson Lane, of Washington, D. C., a sum of money was set aside to erect a marker at her uncle's birthplace. This memorial has been finished.

The marker is pyramidal in shape, 31 feet high and 35 feet square. The body of the monument is composed of native stones showing the weather marks, many being covered with moss.
The stones are set in cement, of which over three and a half carloads were used. The inscription plate and seal are made of hammered American gray granite. The plate is 6 by 2 1/2 feet, and the letters are 3 inches high. The inscription is as follows:

This monument marks the birthplace of James Buchanan, fifteenth President of the United States.
Born 23 April. Died 1 June, 1868.
The monument stands near the cabin in which President Buchanan was born. The country round about is wild and has not changed greatly since the time the President, as a boy, played in the mountains. The monument will be inclosed by a neat iron fence, and the ground inside will be graded and sowed for a distance of 50 feet.

HIS SOCIAL DUTIES

The young woman entered the reception room with the air of having expected some one else and of trying to conceal her disappointment by displaying extra cordiality.

"How do you do, Mr. Whacker?" she said. "I am so glad to see you! It has been such a long time since you called on me!"

"Yes," said the young man with the long face and narrow forehead. "It has been some time, that is true. But when a man has a large—er—social circle it takes time to get around."

"Yes, indeed," agreed the young woman. "It must keep you busy!"

The young man sighed. "Well, I try to see all my friends as often as I can," he said, "but it keeps me jumping! You've no idea the time it takes or the distances I have to travel. And people are so thoughtless—they think a man has neglected them if he doesn't appear once or twice a week, and they show it."

"That is the penalty of popularity," remarked the young woman. "They probably miss you and feel hurt."

"Oh, I don't know about that!" said the young man with the narrow forehead, slowly. "Only you have to be so careful of people's feelings. Do you know, I've gone to call on girls who have actually snubbed me just because I hadn't been there for so long! Yes, it's a fact!"

"How dreadful!" said the young woman.

"Not that I let on that I noticed it," continued the young man. "I just stayed the evening out as if nothing was the matter. I knew that in reality they were enjoying my call. Girls are so funny—acting one way while they feel quite another way. It takes a man who understands them to get on with them. They are more attracted by a man who isn't under their feet all the time, now, aren't they?"

"Well," said the young woman carefully, "I should say it depended considerably on the man. There are men the less of whom one sees the fonder one grows of them! Oh, yes!"

"My theory, exactly," beamed the young man with the narrow forehead. "Not that I try to make every girl I know care about me, but naturally I like to be as popular as I can. There have been so many things to do of late that this is the first time I've been able to get down on the south side this fall. I know so many people out this way, too. Why, there are six places by actual count within two blocks of your house where I should be calling this minute!"

"I don't want to be selfish," said the young woman hopefully. "You mustn't let me keep you, Mr. Whacker, if you are expected somewhere else."

"Oh, you're not," said the young man, comfortably. "They don't expect me. I like to surprise people. I don't believe they even know I've got back to town. Don't you worry about that—I'm perfectly willing to spend a whole evening at one place when I haven't been there in such a long time. I think I owe it to whomever I'm calling on. A call is a pleasure to me, not a duty!"

"Oh—how nice!" murmured the young woman, vaguely, with a surreptitious glance at the clock.

"When I was at the lakes this summer," said the young man, with a decent into patronizing earnestness, "I made up my mind that the first thing I would do on my return was to go to see you. What have you been doing to kill time?"

"Oh," said the young woman with faint sarcasm, "I have managed to exist! I've got along somehow or other. Of course, you know, it has been dull."

"That's too bad," said the young man sympathetically. "We must see if we can't liven things up a bit for you. I always like to give a girl a good time, especially if she isn't used to it. Not that I mean you—that is to say—"

The doorbell interrupted him. Presently an exceedingly tall, determined appearing young man was ushered in. The young woman greeted him with enthusiasm.

"Mr. Whacker—Mr. Gettle," she murmured and then let her gaze fall gently on Mr. Whacker as she went on. "You don't mind, I know, Mr. Whacker, my asking you to excuse me? I have a cardparty engagement with Mr. Gettle. And you see you can get some of those six calls on your list near here."

Mr. Whacker spoke out loud before he had gone a block from the young woman's residence.

"I don't like to think it," he said, "but I actually believe she was to get all of me! Of me!"

ALL FOND OF MAKING NOISE.

It's the Way of Mankind to Seek to Create an Impression.

"Lincoln," said Mr. MacGilliamby, "told a story about a little steamboat running on the Wabash river with a whistle so big that when the captain blew it he had to tie up to the bank for an hour or two to get up steam enough to go on. He had only a little boat, but he wanted to make as much noise as anybody on the river. And isn't it so, in a way, with our friends the automobilists? If you don't see it you can't tell by the sound of the horn whether the machine coming is a veritable battle ship of a car with a limousine body and with 14 extra tires clamped to it, and with hampers and baskets strapped to it all over, and with seven trunks on the roof, a regular house on wheels driven by 100 horse-power engine; or a rickety little second-hand two horse-power runabout, for the floppy little runabout is altogether likely to carry a bigger and louder horn than the majestic touring car. And still, are steamboat men and automobilists the only people that like to put up a big front? Don't we all of us, big and little, like to make all the noise we can in the world?"

UNCLE SAM IN ROLE OF CUPID.

Forced to Act as Matrimonial Agent in the Philippines.

One of the little details that fall to the Philippine government is that of finding husbands for the orphan girls of the institution, bearing the name of the Hospicio de San Jose, and to do this is no easy matter. Before the Filipino will consent to go to the altar he has to be shown a monetary advantage—in fact, a bride without a dowry wouldn't get a husband in a thousand years. Uncle Sam's agents, after wondering why there was such a dearth of bridegrooms for their pretty charges of the Hospicio, finally discovered that in order to marry them off dowries would have to be found. As the result a matrimonial brokerage commission has been formed. Through this, $150 is offered to any young Filipino of good character who will take one of the orphan maids as his life mate, but no bargain is closed until after official cupids have thoroughly examined into the history of the husband-to-be.

First Printer Found.

A French semi-scientific magazine does away with the discussion as to who was the first printer. Here is its story: When Agesilaus observed before the battle that made his name that his soldiers doubted success, he wrote on his hands, inverting the letters, the word "Victory." In Greek, of course. When the priest appeared with the sacrifice, a bull's liver, the great captain laid his hand on the flesh and kept it there for some time. After he removed it the word "Victory" was printed there, patent to all eyes, and this Greek was undoubtedly the first printer. The soldiers saw what they supposed to be "a message from the gods" and fought like lions.

Russian Post Office Savings Bank.

Counsel T. E. Heenan, of Odessa, states that although the post office savings bank system in Russia is of comparatively late origin, it shows a healthy development. The annual increase in the deposits now averages about $46,000,000. The amount on deposit on August 1, 1903, was $501,600,000, and on the same date in 1907 it had reached $686,500,000. As there has not been any real advance in the national prosperity to explain such an increase in the nation's savings, the rush to the savings bank can only be accounted for by the fact of the people not desiring to retain large sums in their homes.—Consular Report.

Warning in Time.

In his desire to use fine language, the dandy of the south frequently allows his ideas to become a trifle confused, as well as confusing. A handbill announcing a "colored picnic" to be held in a grove near Mobile was once freely circulated. After various enticing announcements concerning the delights in store for the partakers in this entertainment, the bill concluded with the following perplexing notice, printed in italics: "Good behavior will be strictly and reservedly enjoined upon all present, and nothing will be left undone which will tend to mar the pleasure of the company."—Harper's Weekly.

Argument for Feathers.

Opposition to the wearing of feathers in feminine headgear has encountered an argument which shows that that are two sides to this as to every other question. Attention is called to the fact that were the practice of wearing feathers to be abandoned tomorrow 30,000 girls would be at once thrown out of employment in Paris alone. A champion of the working girls insists that if a bird or a girl must perish, it ought not to be the girl.—N. Y. Press.

Horse, Hog and Elephant in One.

C. G. Minnick, of 2968 Darlen street, Philadelphia, a week ago cut from a tree near Secare station a section of forked limbs for a one-piece three-legged stool. The three limbs where they are cut off are in the perfect likeness, one of a horse's hoof, the second of a hog's split hoof and the third like an elephant's trunk. The mouth and the trunk of the elephant are startlingly true to nature. The likeness is of nature's own making. All Mr. Minnick had to do was to trim the limbs.

BINGS HAD INSOMNIA SO HE TRIED THE PANTING CURE FOR A CHANGE

"You don't look very well this morning, Bings," commented the head bookkeeper. "What's the matter?"

"Don't sleep very well," replied Bings, shortly. "Been trying to cure my insomnia."

"Well," said the head bookkeeper, judiciously, "I'm troubled that way sometimes myself. Ever try a little hot milk just before retiring?"

"There was a hostile glitter in Bings' eye. 'Yes,' he said, 'I've tried a little hot milk. I've also tried the lukewarm bath and the young onions, and chewing my food, and the rest of it. And last night I tried the panting cure.'"

"The panting cure?" echoed the bookkeeper. "And what is that?"

Bings went into his vest pocket and flashed out a newspaper clipping. It was from one of the numerous departments that women run in the evening paper, in which they tell you everything from how to die to how to get married, and when the head bookkeeper looked it over he found the following:

"Go to bed. Lie flat on your back, with arms at side. Have a low pillow, a rather hard bed, with downy, light coverings and abundance of fresh air. Relax entire body and make a vacuum of your mind. Do not hold yourself on the bed, but let the bed hold you. Now you are ready to begin. Imitate the panting of a tired dog, but pant through the nose instead of through the mouth (Now you are laughing, of course. That's the idea! This is a laugh cure partly!) Pant away until you are all tired out. You will then be impelled to take several long, deep breaths and possibly to yawn. (This is where the deep breathing comes in.) You will notice this vigorous panting shakes the entire trunk, as does laughing. Repeat the alternate panting and deep breathing till you fall asleep naturally."

"Very interesting," commented the head bookkeeper; "and how did you come out?"

"I came out by staying awake nearly all night," growled Bings. "I did everything it says, and I even went up to the spare room to try it on. I told my wife I was going to sleep in the spare room, but I didn't tell her that I was going to try the cure. Well, I got laid down—flat, as it says—and the first thing I tried to do was to 'make a vacuum of my mind.' Ever try to make a vacuum of your mind? Well, it doesn't work. Little things that had worried me in years, came up—and there I lay, 'flat, with arms at my side, on a low pillow,' and all the rest of it trying to get some sleep. At that stage I began the panting—panting like a dog, according to the recipe. I panted and panted—but it didn't make me laugh."

"In fact, it got me to thinking what an all-round darn fool I must look like lying there with my tongue hanging out. But I kept it up. Pretty soon I heard my wife coming upstairs."

"For goodness sake, John," said she, "what's the matter with you?"

"She turned on the gas."

"Nothing," I said. "Why?"

"You're making the most peculiar noises—I heard you way downstairs. Did you have a nightmare?"

"On the contrary," said I, "I haven't been asleep."

"John," she said. "I know there's something the matter. Hannah heard you, too. If you're ill don't try to conceal it."

"I saw there was no use. 'O, only a kink in my side,' I explained. I should have known better than to say it. You see my wife thinks I'm a martyr who suffers in silence."

"I hope it isn't your old trouble," she said, coming to the bed and prodding me in the groin. "Hannah, go get the hot water bottle."

"I expostulated, but it didn't go. Hannah got the hot water bottle, and, what is more, my wife placed it right over the pit of my stomach, and almost before I knew it had me swathed in hot clothes. She has an idea that warmth will drive away any disease, and although I protested that there wasn't anything serious the matter with me she worked over me for an hour."

"It was then about one o'clock in the morning. Having finally convinced her that the slight pain had passed she left me. Of course there wasn't any use trying to pant after this experience, but I lay there and heard the clock strike two and three and still no sleep, and I determined to give the cure another chance. I started to pant, but lightly so as not to attract attention. Soon I became interested in it. Once, I think, I really did fall asleep, but suddenly I started up and discovered that I was panting heartily like a dog that wants a drink of water."

"My wife was up there in a minute. This time she was in tears. 'John,' she wailed, 'it's horrid of you to lay here and suffer and try to make me think there is nothing the matter with you. Why don't you tell the truth, dear? I know you're in pain. I'm going right down and telephone Dr. Watson.'"

"At this I sat up. 'Mary,' I said 'I'm not in pain. I'm simply panting for insomnia.' And then, in order to keep the doctor away, I told her about it. But it was not me that laughed—it was my wife. And the funny thing about it was that as soon as I told her the truth I promptly fell asleep. But I didn't feel much like getting up this morning."

CURES FOR VARIOUS AILMENTS.

Home Remedies in Use Among Pennsylvania Dutch.

"In Bucks county, among the Pennsylvania Dutch, there are," said a doctor, "innumerable home cures. Some of them are pretty good, too. One is, for toothache, a lump of alum held in the mouth for two or three days. This is warranted not only to stop a toothache, but to keep it from ever coming back. In the fall and winter they wrap their chests in brown paper up there in Bucks county, saying that this prevents colds. Every housewife keeps on the kitchen dresser, and every husband on his dressing table, a small box of cobwebs. There is nothing better than cobwebs for a cut, especially for a razor cut acquired in shaving—it stops the bleeding instantly. They soak ivy leaves in hot water in Bucks county, and after the water gets cold they squeeze in lemon juice. This palatable drink is given to consumptives, whom it is said to cure. Stewed onions eaten and snuff sniffed they find good influenza specifics. For insomnia they make hop pillows, and for bruises they keep on hand dried puffballs, the powdery insides of which they sprinkle on the hurt."

BIBLE MANY CENTURIES OLD.

Valuable Manuscript Treasured in the Cottonian Library.

In the Cottonian library in England is an old manuscript copy of a part of the Bible in Latin. This was used at the coronation of English sovereigns 300 years before the "stone of destiny" was brought from Scooe to Westminster by Edward I. In other words the use of this Bible for the purpose in question dated back to the year 1000. The Bible is a quarto of 217 leaves, containing the four Gospels, and seems, from the style of the writing and illuminations, which are very beautiful, to have been made about the end of the ninth century. The Testament escaped destruction in the fire at Ashburnham House in 1731, of which it bears evidence on its crumpled leaves and ruined margins. There is some evidence that the son of Edward the Elder, Athelstan the Glorious, who was King of the West Saxons from 925 to 939, owned this Bible and presented it to the church of Dover.

London in Her Glory.

Seen under the glory of a really fine sunset, London must be one of the most beautiful and impressive spectacles in the world. You may look up the Thames, and see the red sun turning the pall of smoke that hangs over the shipping into a sultry crimson cloud, and lighting the dirty water and dingy wharves with a gleam of gold; or see the dome of St. Paul's caught in a mist of rich colors; or the high buildings of Bond street standing clearly out against the warmly-tinted sky; and wonder, not unreasonably, whether any other city that ever was built could show such a magnificent series of pictures as can this dingy London of ours of an autumn evening. —County Gentleman.

Cure for Ringworms.

As a cure for ringworms this curious recipe was given in the House-keeper's Guide for 1836. 'Get the coomb of a church bell, that is, the grease which is applied to make it work easy, and with which the metal forms a kind of verdigris; mix it with unsalted lard and apply a fresh plaster twice a day. It is not superstition that dictates the use of a church bell above any other, but the peculiar combination of metals employed for the purpose produces a different kind of verdigris. This remedy was long kept a profound secret, and many cures effected at an enormous charge. It has been equally efficacious as freely and openly communicated.'

For the Cozy Corner.

An elderly man from the country, intent on purchasing some furniture, proceeded to the city to put his skill for bargaining to the test. On entering an "old curiosity" shop he found himself confronted by the proprietor. After turning over the stock the old man purchased a chair. A few days later the purchaser returned to the shop again with the chair in about half a dozen pieces. The proprietor looked at them very gravely and examined them all over, then suddenly exclaimed: "Ah, my friend, I see what is the matter; somebody has been sitting on it!" —Tit-Bits

To Have No Trouble.

One way to avoid trouble is to make it impossible before it appears. On the day of the Sunday school picnic the trolley car stopped to take a bright-eyed, middle-aged woman with six hatless boys. "Yes, we're going to the picnic," she chirped, in response to the conductor's query, "but you won't have to stop to pick up any lost headgear. I'm perfectly willing to take care of six boys; but there isn't money enough to tempt me to look after six boys and six hats."

Correct Interpretation Essential.

Many of the most beautiful pieces of poetry in literature would seem uninteresting and flat if read by a bad reciter. In the same way, a good reciter will make attractive a poem whose beauties are not so apparent. A fine painter will light up each little beauty in his pictures until the smallest detail is attractive and strikes the eye. It is only the mediocrity whose work is characterized by sameness and lack of interest.

MERRY CHRISTMAS.

As no rural mails will be delivered on Christmas Day and as publication day falls this year on that day and delivery of paper would be somewhat delayed and as the printers have the capacity to enjoy a Christmas as well as the rest of humanity, the COMPILER is issued a day earlier this week and will be with its many friends before Christmas Day. This issue will take with it a very merry Christmas from us to all our readers, patrons and friends, with wishes for the largest measure of happy Christmas cheer to all.

THE WINTER PRIMARY.

Last year the winter primary was not held because there was some doubt whether the State would reimburse the county for the outlay. Last week the Attorney General filed an opinion ordering that all expenses of the winter primary which shall fall on the counties shall be reimbursed by the State, so that the winter primary will be held without any outlay to the county. This is sufficient in itself to justify holding the winter primary. The law is on our statute books and is there to stay. There may be modifications made in the law after it has been tried so as to make it better, but primary laws are being adopted in every state in the Union. The voters must yet become familiar with the workings of the law and that can only be brought about by the practical experience of holding primaries. The date of Winter primary is Jan. 25 and last day for filing petitions for borough and township offices will be Jan. 4. There is only one thing to do, fall in line with the new law, get out applications in time, don't let your districts suffer for the want of officers to conduct the affairs of your districts.

Lafean's Good Committee Berth.

Just what Uncle Joe Cannon as Speaker of the House and Congressman, and D. R. Lafean propose for the 20th Congressional District of Pennsylvania remains to be seen. Last Thursday Uncle Joe announced his committee appointments and Congressman Lafean won the prize of a place on committee on Public Buildings and Ground. It was a surprise as reported in the dispatches to York to Mr. Lafean, and it is said that it is conceded in Washington that this appointment practically assures public buildings at York, Gettysburg and Hanover. Congressman Lafean has introduced bills for appropriations for building at York on the purchased site and also bills for purchase of sites and erection thereon of federal buildings at Gettysburg and Hanover.

If Uncle Joe and Congressman Lafean want to prove to this district that they are not playing politics, these bills for federal buildings at York, Gettysburg and Hanover will have to be passed by the 60th Congress before the Spring primary of April 11.

Almost Swallowed Pin.

A little daughter of Reuben Julius of Littlestown while playing with a breast pin last Friday swallowed the back of the pin and seemed to be slowly choking to death. A hurried call was sent in for Dr. Crouse, who responded on a run, but his surgical services were fortunately not required, for the little child, in strangling for breath, had reached down her throat and at the same time coughed, which action dislodged the back of the pin and the little one took it out, all covered with blood.

Too Much Married.

Edward Minton was brought from Washington, Pa., by County Detective Chas. H. Wilson and lodged with Sheriff Colestock on last Wednesday on the charge of bigamy made by Frances G. Yungling of this place, who alleges she was married to him about four months ago in Harrisburg and lived with him until about a week ago when he left for Washington, Pa., where his first wife lives, taking with him some of second wife's apparel, with a ring and some money.

Minton was a National Guard and met Miss Yungling when he was at the encampment here in 1906. She says she did not know he was married and after correspondence they met at Harrisburg and since their marriage had been living in Harrisburg and Baltimore. Minton denies they were married. After hearing before Justice Hill last Thursday Minton was held in $1,000 bail for his appearance at the January Court to answer charges other than bigamy, and it was said he would be held on that charge at Harrisburg, where they were married.

Manager Muhlenberg has arranged the following schedule for the basket ball team of Gettysburg College:

January 16, Lebanon Valley at Gettysburg; January 23, F. and M. at Lancaster; February 14, F. and M. at Gettysburg; February 21, George Washington at Gettysburg; February 27, George Washington at Washington; February 28, open; February 29, Georgetown University at Washington; March 5, New York University (Law School) at Gettysburg; March 12, Bucknell at Gettysburg.

Peculiar Poisoning Case.

George Hiltbreck, a farmer living in Germany township, at the edge of Littlestown, is suffering severely from phosphorus poisoning which he received through mixing up a rat poison. Mr. Hiltbreck's left arm swelled terribly and Dr. Crouse, who is the attending physician, found that it would be necessary to open that member to let out the poisonous matter. The arm was operated on twice, Dr. Crouse performing the operation assisted by Drs. S. R. Weaver and H. E. Gelfier.

Picturesque Pennsylvania.

Do you believe that Pennsylvania is one of the most attractive States, as well as the richest in mineral wealth? The Philadelphia "Record" does. It is devoting a page of its Sunday magazine to "Picturesque Pennsylvania," in which from Sunday to Sunday will be presented the most striking, charming and attractive features of the natural scenery of the State, in which it is unrivaled.

Its "Picturesque Pennsylvania" page consists of articles descriptive of the fine scenery of its various sections interwoven with a goodly measure of legend, local tradition and historic incident, thus giving the articles a warm human interest, besides calling the attention of the "Record's" great army of readers to the picturesque features of their own State.

These articles are written or edited by George E. Mapes, who has charge of "Our State Neighbors" column on the editorial page of the "Record." He has made a special study of Pennsylvania and is personally familiar with every section of the State. The articles are illustrated with the best pictures of the striking scenery described that modern photography can furnish.

The first five articles, which have already appeared, have been devoted to the water gaps and river gorges made by the Delaware, Lehigh, Schuylkill, Swatara and Susquehanna rivers through the Kittatinny range of mountains. It is the purpose of the "Record" to include in this series of descriptive articles all the important natural attractions of Pennsylvania, among which may be named its mountain ranges, its principal river systems, fertile valleys, marvelous springs, forest reserves, numerous lakes, water-falls, caverns and other interesting natural features.

The "Record" will welcome in this connection suggestions and information from its State readers regarding special scenic features which can be described and presented in attractive pictured form from any section of the State.

TELLS HOW TO MIX IT.
DIRECTIONS TO PREPARE SIMPLE HOME MIXTURE.
Tells You How to Overcome Rheumatism With Simple Recipe, Which is Easily Mixed.

A well-known authority on Rheumatism gives the readers of a large New York daily paper the following valuable, yet simple and harmless prescription which any one can easily prepare at home.

Fluid Extract Sassafras one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sassafras, three ounces.

Mix by shaking well in a bottle, and take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

He states that the ingredients can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacist at a small cost, and being of vegetable extraction, are harmless to take.

This pleasant mixture, if taken regularly for a few days, is said to overcome almost any case of Rheumatism. The pain and swelling, if any, diminishes with each dose, until permanent results are obtained, and without injuring the stomach. While there are many so-called Rheumatism remedies, patent medicines, etc., some of which do give relief, few really give permanent results, and the above will, no doubt be greatly appreciated by many sufferers here at this time.

Inquiry at the drug stores of this neighborhood elicits the information that these drugs are harmless and can be bought separately, or the druggists here will mix the prescription for our readers if asked to.

Mrs. P. H. RILEY of near Fairfield was struck in eye last week by a thorn and had a narrow escape from a serious injury.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

He declares that no work is so nerve trying as shopping, and advises a good, substantial luncheon in the midst of the store hunt. Take an hour for rest and eat, thinking as little as possible of the tasks yet to be accomplished, and there will not be such a splitting headache to take home.

Good Cough Medicine for Children.
The season for coughs and colds is now at hand and too much care cannot be used to protect the children. A child is much more likely to contract diphtheria or scarlet fever when he has a cold. The quicker you cure his cold the less the risk. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the sole reliance of many mothers, and few of those who have tried it are willing to use any other. Mrs. E. F. Starcher, of Riley, W. Va., says: "I have never used anything other than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for my children, and it has always given good satisfaction." This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic and may be given as confidently to a child as to an adult. For sale by Peoples Drug Store.

First Idea of the Telegraph.
Long before Prof. S. F. B. Morse had perfected his great invention the word "telegraph" was used for a sort of semaphore. In the French revolution a "telegraph" assisted by telescopes, was devised to carry news over immense distances. Forty years before this time, however, there was published the first detailed scheme for communication by means of electricity. It is outlined in a letter to the Scots magazine, written February 1, 1753, from Renfrew and signed "C. M." This suggestion was to transmit a "charge" from the conductor of an electrical machine at the sending station along an insulated wire to the receiving machine, the presence of the charge being indicated by the behavior of a light pit ball or the passage of a spark. Each letter of the alphabet was to have a separate wire, so that any word might be spelled out and any message sent.

From Czestochowa, the Mecca of Polish pilgrims, comes an amazing story of coincidences. A pilgrim went to one of the priests and complained that some thief had stolen his purse while he was in church, and asked for money. The priest replied that he had no money and that the best thing for the pilgrim to do was to try to find the thief. "I shall go into the church and steal money from somebody else," said the pilgrim, "for I have nothing to go home with." He went into the church and seeing a man in the crowd with a wallet on his back slipped his hand into it and pulled out his own stolen purse, with the exact sum he had left in it. He was so glad to find his money that he hurried off to tell the priest and the thief got away.

GUARANTEED REMEDY FOR INDIGESTION.
Interesting Statement by The People's Drug Store.

When a man comes into this store and calls for any particular indigestion remedy, we always give him what he asks for, but in case he leaves it to us we usually recommend Pepsikola tablets.

Here is a preparation we have been selling right over the counter for years, and from actual observation we know it must do good, and really does cure indigestion and dyspepsia or there would be a steady stream of people coming back for their money, as every 25 cent box is sold with the understanding that you must be decidedly benefited or there is nothing to pay.

You simply try Pepsikola tablets with the understanding that they will steady your nerves, improve your appetite, relieve wind belching, coated tongue, sour stomach, fullness after eating, weakened energy, and other symptoms of indigestion or The People's Drug Store is ready at any time to pay back your money without the least argument.

Extenuating Circumstances

A Christmas Story

By ANDREW D. GRANGE.

(Copyright, 1907, by Wright A. Patterson.)

I.

"I was an unpardonable liberty," said Kitty.
 "The temptation—" I began.
 She cut me short with an angry little frown.
 "That has nothing whatever to do with it," she remarked icily.
 "On the contrary," said I, "it palliates the offense, if it does not altogether excuse it. Let us consider the facts of the case. You were spending Christmas with your aunt, Mrs. Glenorridon, in the country. One evening, as you were passing along a darkened corridor, on the way to your room, you met a certain gentleman—"
 "He wasn't a gentleman," she interposed quickly.
 "Oh!" I exclaimed. "I certainly thought that your aunt's guests—"
 "He wasn't a true gentleman," she added disdainfully, "or he wouldn't have acted as he did."
 "A discourteous gentleman, then—who taking advantage of the darkness, deliberately kissed you upon—"
 "Don't be ridiculous!" she snapped. "I asked you to help me."
 "I am endeavoring to do so," said I. "Then do it properly!" I assumed an air of profound gravity. Kitty regarded me thoughtfully out of a corner of her deep blue eye. "You see," she continued, "I don't know who it was—and—well, you know, it makes it rather awkward for me."
 "Didn't you see his face?" I asked.
 "No," she answered. "He came up behind, and—and it was all over in a second." She shuddered prettily. "It was quite dark," she added, "and I time I might have guessed who was the real offender. I wished now that I had waited before casting suspicion upon the hospitable captain and the influential Mr. Porter, both of whom would doubtless cut me dead in the future. But, alas! when a man is in my condition, he— Suddenly an idea occurred to me.

III.

Miss Mainwaring was at home. I made my way up to the dainty blue-and-white shrine in which Kitty received her most devoted worshippers. "Ah," she exclaimed, running to meet me, "I am glad you have come!" "Not more so than I am," I replied, pressing her hand warmly.
 "Oh, heaps!" she said gaily. "I am just dying to hear the news. Have you discovered anything?"
 "I have," said I, taking a seat by the tea-table. "I have discovered everything."
 She clapped her hands delightedly. "You dear old thing!" she cried. "I knew you would. Who was it?"
 "It was that misguided nephew of mine," I announced gloomily.
 For a moment I thought she was going to get up and dance round the room. Then suddenly she became grave, and the light died out of her eyes.
 "Oh!" she remarked, "it was Jack, was it?"
 "Yes," said I, "it was Jack."
 She poured out a cup of tea and passed it to me, keeping her eyes fixed on the tea-cosy the while.
 Then we talked about other matters until it was time for me to go.
 "Good-bye," she said; "and thank you for taking so much trouble."
 "It was no trouble," I assured her. One must do the polite thing, you know, at any cost.
 "I can only hope," I continued, "that in time you will be able to forgive my nephew for such an act of gross impertinence."
 "Ah, yes!" she answered warmly. "I think—yes, I am really very glad it was Jack."
 "Oh!" I ejaculated sharply.
 "Rather than one of the others," she concluded hastily.

IV.

I wandered disconsolately in a less-frequented part of the avenue trying to think things out. It was now close upon a month since my last tete-a-tete with Kitty, and during that time I had never once been able to catch her alone. Indeed, on most of the occasions when I called she was out, a piece of bad luck I had not hitherto been accustomed to; and when I did find her in, she was either surrounded by friends, or engaged in elaborate sewing operations which necessitated the constant attendance of her maid. Once or twice, too, I caught sight of Master Jack in town, when by the calendar he ought to have been pursuing his studies; and the circumstance, coupled with his obvious anxiety to avoid me, filled my mind with a vague foreboding.

"What the deuce does it mean?" I asked myself, as I strode along with eyes thoughtfully bent upon the ground, regardless alike of passers-by and the people who would have passed by had I not collided with them.

I cannoned off an eminent dignitary of the church, and ran full tilt against a smartly dressed couple who were dodging round the episcopal back. (I could only see the billowy edging of a dainty skirt—and what not—above a still fainter ankle, and the bottoms of a pair of immaculately creased trousers.) My murmured apology was cut excessively short as I raised my hat and my eyes at the same time. It was Jack and Kitty, looking very spic and span, and no little pleased with themselves.

"Eh? What!" I gasped, taken somewhat aback.

Kitty's smile was as the wine of Oporto in its intoxicating sweetness.

"Oh," she cried, "it is Mr. Walker!"
 "It is," said I, frowning at her levity. I was feeling in no particularly light mood myself just then.

She pouted and turned to her companion.

"Don't you think, Jack," she said, "you ought to tell your uncle about—about it?"

"Certainly," responded that young hopeful. "You will, my dear uncle, be delighted to learn that I have just obtained Mrs. Mainwaring's consent to my engagement with Kitty here."

"Hum—ah—exceedingly delighted—pray accept my congratulations," I stammered.

"Thanks!" said Jack. "I thought you would be pleased." The young vagabond actually winked as he said this.

"Ah, yes—of course," said I, with a futile attempt at dignity. "Kitty is a charming—that is, you will both be—very happy."

"We mean to be," he asserted stoutly. "Don't we, little woman?"

"Yes," she whispered softly, pressing his arm with her daintily gloved hand. Irony of ironies! I had bought those gloves!

"I'll look you up this evening at your club," said Jack, making as if to move on.

"Yes—do," said I.

They departed in a blustering gale of laughter, two young, handsome, perfectly mated creatures, and I—

I jammed my hat firmly down upon my head, and walked away as if the love affairs of a mere boy and girl could have no interest for a confirmed old bachelor of something and forty.

Kitty and I are the best of friends still. She is Mrs. Owen now, and does not seem at all to regret having thrown herself away upon a worthless young scamp like Jack. She actually adores the fellow, and has forgiven him his outrageous treatment of me.

Even though I am only "extenuating circumstances" as a husband, I am not a bad one. But then, women are like that—always forgiving, I call them.

"P. S.—I don't know that I wouldn't let you scan if I got the chance."
 I folded the letter and sat in my chair staring savagely at the fire. Here I had let myself into no end of a mess, and most probably lost two good friends, at least, to mention the major's utterly ridiculous, over this confounded business, and all the only saw his shirtfront. He was in evening dress, you know."

"But were there no distinguishing features, such as a shirt stud, or—a moustache?" I suggested.

"Oh, yes!" she responded quickly. "He had a moustache; and I think he was tall, because he had to bend down when—when he did it. His shirt stud was a plain gold one, I believe."

"Well," said I, "how many tall men were there in the party who possessed moustaches and plain gold shirt studs?"

"Let me see," she mused; "there was Capt. Jack Harland, Mr. Porter, and your nephew Jack."

"Jack," I said, "is quite capable of behaving in such a disgraceful manner."

"Yes," she assented, almost cheerfully; "but I don't think it was Jack. At least," she added with a bright smile, "I want you to be a dear old—I mean, a good, kind-hearted person, and find out for me."

"It shall be done!" I cried, rising both to the occasion and to take my leave.

II.

It is one thing to make a promise in all the glow of a generous moment, and another thing to keep it in the cold, practical light of after-reasoning.

However, I did the best that I could. In the first place I wrote to Jack, who was then at Harvard, and, without divulging the source of my information, stated briefly what had come to my knowledge, and asked him if he could throw any light on the matter. It was some two or three days before I received his reply which was characteristically brief and ran:

"Dearest Uncle:—I received your letter containing a vivid description of what you term the 'shameful outrage.' Now, I don't mind confessing to you that I am the culprit, because you have been young yourself (once), and know that the path of youth is strewn, etc. Besides, there were extenuating circumstances in this case. I like the decent old sort you are, make it right for me with the girl, and for ever earn the gratitude of your affectionate nephew, Jack Owen."

"P. S.—I don't know that I wouldn't let you scan if I got the chance."

I folded the letter and sat in my chair staring savagely at the fire. Here I had let myself into no end of a mess, and most probably lost two good friends, at least, to mention the major's utterly ridiculous, over this confounded business, and all the
